Death toll mounts in mine disaster

An explosion and fire killed at least 151 workers at a coal mine in western Turkey on Tuesday, and hundreds more remained trapped underground, said government officials as Turkey launched a massive rescue.

Energy Minister Taner
 Yildiz said 787 people were inside the mine in Soma and 363 of them had been rescued by Tuesday evening. He said 76 miners were injured, including one who was in serious condition.

Authorities say the disaster was sparked by a power-distribution unit.

Yildiz said most of the deaths were the result of carbon monoxide poisoning.

"Time is working against us," Yildiz said earlier. He stated some 400 rescuers were involved in the operation.

North York woman counts her blessings — 50 million of them

From juggling 4 jobs to sweet retirement.

Answer to her prayers

"I said, 'Please Jesus, send me some money. I don't need too much.'"

Sophie Rizavas, lottery winner

She wasn't sure if it was dogmatically proper, but last Friday night Sophie Rizavas prayed to Jesus for money.

The 63-year-old North York grandmother was juggling four jobs as a cleaning lady, while her husband drove airport limos. She wanted them both to retire.

"I said, 'Please Jesus, send me some money,'" Rizavas recalled. "I don't need too much."

The next day she won $50 million in the lottery.

"It was a miracle," she laughed, speaking to reporters at the Ontario Lottery and Gaming Corp.'s prize centre near Dundas Square on Tuesday.

Rizavas was en route home from work Saturday when she decided to stop in at a nearby convenience store to check her Lotto Max ticket. She walked up to the counter and asked the man working to scan her ticket. The machine buzzed and flashed.

Rizavas immigrated to Canada with her husband in 1970 — exactly 44 years to the day before she won the lottery, she said Tuesday.

She grew up in Athens, the only daughter to a father who worked in construction and a dressmaker mother.

Rizavas said she doesn't know what she's going to do with the money. Her plans so far are to enjoy retirement with her husband and spend as

Random spot checks of strip-search use urged

Police board chair Alok Mukherjee
COLIN MCCONNELL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

In the latest move in a nearly decade-long review of strip searching, the chair of the Toronto Police Services Board is recommending the force itself be examined — via random spot check — to monitor officers' use of the search.

At its monthly meeting Thursday, Alok Mukherjee will recommend the board ask police Chief Bill Blair to conduct an examination of how, and when, officers carry out strip searches — a probe that would include random spot checks at all 17 police divisions.

The aim is in part to understand how a strip search was conducted in one of every three arrests last year, despite a Supreme Court ruling stating the tool cannot be employed "routinely."

"The point of (random spot checks) would be to find out exactly how are the police officers justifying their request for search, and what are the supervisors — the sergeants, staff sergeants — basing their approval on?" Mukherjee said Tuesday.

The on-the-ground examination at police divisions is necessary, Mukherjee said, because concerns about strip searching persist despite what he calls "robust and comprehensive" procedures and policies in place by both Toronto police and the board.

Among the requirements is that officers performing strip searches explain the legal grounds to a superior officer beforehand. That superior must then consider the justification for doing the search.

The methodology of the spot checks — including who would conduct them and how frequently — would be determined by Blair, Mukherjee said.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Ongoing review

Concerns about possible overuse of strip searching by Toronto police have dogged the board for years, most recently illustrated in statistics showing police strip searched 20,152 people in 2013, representing 34 per cent of all arrests made.

- In just over one per cent of those searches, police found evidence such as drugs.

Soknacki raising funds for info about Rob Ford

'Public interest'

Mayoral candidate is looking to find out if office staff was used for re-election campaign

JESSICA SMITH CROSS
jessica.smithcross@metronews.ca

Mayoral candidate David Soknacki is asking the public to help his campaign pay for records from Mayor Rob Ford's office, hoping to uncover evidence about whether or not Ford has used his city office staff for his re-election campaign.

"It's a project we think is in the public interest, quite outside it being in the interest of our campaign," said Soknacki, adding that even small donations of $5 or $10 will mean people are contributing to "the political process of holding Mr. Ford to account."

City staff told Soknacki's campaign the request turned up about 2,000 pages that will be ready in about two weeks, and cost $460 in administration fees. Soknacki said that in the first few hours since the announcement, his campaign received $250. The money donated will be considered campaign contributions.

The FOI request was for schedules, scheduling notes, briefing notes, memos, draft speaking notes and emails produced, held or archived by the mayor and members of his staff from Jan. 3 to Feb. 18. Soknacki said he will post whatever documents he receives online for voters to decide for themselves whether or not Ford's campaign misused city resources.

The request was broadly written and has the potential to turn up other information about the mayor and his staff.

Soknacki said that "while a lot of water has gone under the bridge since," he doesn't regret filing it and still believes that it "strikes to the heart of the democratic process."

"I think it remains in the public interest that no public office holder ought to use public funds for campaigning purposes," Soknacki said. "It's important that, whether it be Rob Ford or anyone else, that public office holders be held to account."

Tracking the mayor

Ford knows how to make headlines

In the time frame for David Soknacki's request, the mayor made headlines for: His profane patois rant at Steak Queen; been sued by Scott MacIntyre for an alleged jailhouse beating; tried to get the city hall pride flag taken down; and been to Vancouver, where he was ticketed for jaywalking and seen talking "jibbership" after emerging from the bathroom in a bar where he was allegedly served after hours.

Since then, Ford has put his campaign on hold and gone to rehab.

TTC and unions reach tentative deal

The TTC and its largest union have reached a tentative deal that will potentially avoid arbitration.

"There has been a tentative settlement, but the members have to vote on it," Amalgamated Transit Union Local 113 spokesperson Bill Reno said Tuesday. Reno said no details of the agreement with ATU — the largest of four unions representing 10,000 operators, collectors and maintenance crews — can be released prior to a vote to ratify, which will take place Friday.

The TTC board will consider the ATU agreement and deals already reached with three other unions at a special closed-door meeting Wednesday.

"Reaching negotiated agreements at the table with all four unions is a testament to the hard work by all parties," TTC spokesperson Brad Ross said.

The three other contracts with unions representing machinists, electricians and other employees have already been ratified by members, Ross said.

The ATU has been prohibited from striking as part of its arsenal of negotiating tactics since March 2011, when the TTC was declared by the province to be an essential service.

TTC CEO Andy Byford with TTC spokesperson Brad Ross. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

That move made arbitration the only alternative to a negotiated agreement.

Since then, there have been several public spats between the union and the TTC over issues like a requirement to obtain doctor's notes for sick days and contracting out maintenance jobs. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Tuesday that the 179-seat Folketing should in the future "be more careful with what we put our name to." Lawmakers were cited by Danish media as saying it was done without their knowledge.

The European Court of Human Rights ruled Monday that Turkey must pay the damages to Cyprus for its 1974 invasion and the island's subsequent division.

The ruling came as the Turkish and Greek Cypriot communities are making a new effort to reunite the island.

Overcrowding issue. When officials entered a resident's house, they found 'dozens of dogs' living in unsanitary conditions

The Calgary Humane Society is investigating the circumstances at a home in the city's southeast where dozens of dogs were seized after concerns were raised for the animals' welfare.

Brad Nichols of the Calgary Humane Society said they received a call from the Calgary Police Service this afternoon after officers were called in to check on the welfare of a resident living on Addison Drive SE in the community of Acadia.

Around 30 to 32 dogs were discovered inside the home, according to the Calgary Humane Society.

"When they entered, they found dozens of dogs living in unsanitary conditions. At this point, we're in the midst of removing the animals," Nichols said. He added that it's rare to come across a home with this many dogs inside.

"I hesitate to call it a hoarding situation but certainly an overcrowding concern," he said. Nichols said he's unsure of the homeowner or resident's whereabouts.

Jo-Anne Leussink, a dog trainer, lives two doors down from the home and said she knows the occupant and has competed against her in dog shows. Leussink said she was informed by a man trying to drop something off at the home that there was a strong odour coming from the house, so she pushed open the front door, and found dogs all over the home.

The Calgary Humane Society will head the investigation.

Violence and risk of 'catastrophic famine' plagues South Sudan

Malnutrition. A possible ceasefire holds hope of staving off catastrophe

Bodies stuffed in wells. Houses burned down. Children playing on military hardware. And infants showing the skeletal outlines of severe hunger.

These are the scenes from a remote part of South Sudan — Leer — where Doctors Without Borders has just begun feeding severely malnourished children about three months after the aid group's hospital was destroyed in violence that has been ripping apart the country since December.

Widespread hunger

"Hunger and malnutrition are already widespread. If this planting window is missed, there will be a real risk of famine." United Nations Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon former Vice-President Riek Machar battled each other on Sunday, only two days after Kiir and Machar met in Ethiopia to sign a ceasefire deal, the second peace treaty of the conflict. The first one fell apart soon after it was signed.

More than 1.3 million people have fled their homes.

Many have spent months living in what people in this part of the world refer to as "the bush," the untamed wild where dirty water and disease lie in wait. Protesters demand fat control therapy for all

Weight pain. Minister of health draws a hard line in his refusal to fund life-saving treatment for obesity

liz.brown@metronews.ca

Criticism of the Ministry of Health reached a new level this week as two more advocacy groups joined calls for the ministry to begin funding an effective anti-obesity treatment that has been commercially available for more than a decade.

Healthy Weight Canada and End Obesity Now say that the ministry is denying Canadians access to what they consider a life-saving treatment.

Canada continues to deny health care coverage for Zaponectin, an injectable hormone therapy that controls appetite, boosts metabolism and promotes weight loss. It also protects against glucose intolerance and insulin resistance — two conditions that are precursors to adult-onset diabetes.

Cost for the initial and follow-up treatments can reach over $250,000 — an amount out of reach for many of the patients who need it most.

Over the years, the ministry has argued Zaponectin is a non-essential treatment, falling into the alternative therapy and cosmetic category.

"Obesity is a lifestyle choice," said Marcus Aarles, minister of health and long-term care for the ruling Newer Democratic Party.

Aarles has repeatedly come under criticism for the hard line he has taken in refusing to fund the treatment, especially when, earlier this year, The American Republic agreed to add Zaponectin as an approved and funded medical treatment.

The drug first appeared on the market in 2053 and was immediately adopted by the wealthy as a way to maintain svelte physiques. The treatment stimulates the production of adiponectin, a hormone secreted from fat cells. In an individual of healthy weight, adiponectin stimulates metabolism, protects against cellular damage and controls appetite. However, as a person becomes obese, their body stops producing the hormone.

"It is not the duty of the government to fund treatments that help people look better in bikinis," Aarles said at the time.

"It's terrifying that the man making important decisions about our health care has such a prejudiced view of those suffering from obesity," said Anne Pechlof, director of End Obesity Now, a group that works to promote healthy body weight through gene and hormone therapy.

On Tuesday, Pechlof led a group of more than 100 protesters to Parliament Hill, demanding that the government immediately begin funding Zaponectin. "In 2064, it's a disgrace that people are dying of turn-of-the-century ailments like cardiovascular disease and diabetes. The Newer Democratic Party government doesn't take a long-term view with this treatment," said Pechlof.

"If more people had access to Zaponectin, we would eliminate the need to treat obesity-related ailments."

Aarles, however, maintains the responsibility for one's health lies with the individual. "Time and again, we see that a healthy diet and exercise are all that's needed to avoid many of these diseases.

The government refuses to burden the taxpayer with the mistakes of people who have no self-control."

"We aren't asking for this to look good," said Pechlof at the rally. "We are asking for this to even the playing field between rich and poor. Not only are those who can't afford this treatment suffering health problems, they are also suffering from the demeaning stigma associated with being overweight."

Ford found. Former Toronto mayor resurfaces after half a century in hiding

Former Toronto mayor Rob Ford came out of hiding Tuesday, a half century after he disappeared amid the biggest scandal of that era.

In 2014, Ford left Toronto in the middle of his re-election campaign to seek help for his drug and alcohol use after he was caught on numerous videos making derogatory comments about women and minorities.

Ford did not return by election day. As time went by, his brother, Coun. Doug Ford, continued to refuse to identify the rehab facility Ford was at for treatment, and theories about his whereabouts multiplied.

In late 2016, the media frenzy over Ford's whereabouts reached a fever pitch over a suspected Ford sighting in the Ontario wilderness, but it turned out to be a balding bear.

Today, "Ford Truthers" continue to promote the idea that Ford's candidacy was a left-wing conspiracy engineered to make conservatives look bad and claim that Rob Ford — and in fact the whole Ford family — were only ever actors.

In the age of blanket surveillance, most observers concluded that with no reputable sighting of him in all these years, he must have died.

However Ford, alive, well and remarkably fit for a 97-year-old, shocked everyone Tuesday when he called an unexpected press conference. He revealed that he's been at a yoga retreat on a remote island off B.C. for the last five decades, one of the few places the electronic eyes of the government and the press neglected to watch.

"Namaste, maggots," he said, in his first media scrum in 50 years. "Yoga is amazing. It reminds me of football camp. Kind of like the Washington Redskins camp I went to as a kid."

Following a period of medically supervised detox back in 2014, Ford turned to yoga therapy to work through his mental health issues. After finding he was no longer angry with his political opponents, he had no desire to return to politics, he said.

"I've been working out like an animal," he said. "Those yogi, they really work at their downward dogs."

ORGAN DISPUTE JEOPARDIZES PHENOM'S CAREER

colin.mcneil@metronews.ca

He may skate like Bobby Orr and make plays like The Great One, but hockey's current golden boy also happens to have something those legendary players never had — super lungs.

The Trans-National Hockey League confirmed Tuesday what had been rumoured on viral media for weeks — Joseph Bijral of the Regina Ice Breakers has a pair of vat-grown lungs. They're bigger, stronger, and operate at about 12 per cent greater efficiency than your average TNHL forward's. Now that his full medical records have been made public by the young phenom himself, we know Bijral received the artificial organs as a last-resort, life-saving measure after a near-fatal vehicular accident at age 11. He's 21 now.

Artificially-grown organ technology was in its adolescence 10 years ago, but even today, full-lung replacements are complicated by rejection factors. "It was just something that happened when I was a kid," said Bijral at an Ice Breakers' media holocaust yesterday. "I wouldn't be here right now without this thing."

"I never thought it would be a problem, honestly."

Turns out, it's a big problem. After finally acknowledging the lung issue on Tuesday, TNHL spokesperson Janice Marbeta announced a Special Competitive Oversight Committee meeting to determine whether Bijral's lungs fall under the sports world's latest buzzword — "unintentional performance enhancement."

"Effective immediately," Marbeta said, "Joseph Bijral will be suspended from active league play until such time as we can determine his status in regards to unintentional performance enhancement."

Follow words, perhaps, considering the regular season is already over, and the Ice Breakers didn't make the 2064 playoffs.

If this special committee decides Bijral is good to play, it's unlikely much of anything in the league will change, at least according to Jonathan Lane, former assistant to the vice-president of TNHL operations. "There aren't many people out there walking around with super-lungs. This whole to-do pretty much applies just to Joey," Lane said.

If the TNHL does opt to ban Bijral, it could be the end to a promising career that never was. But for hockey fans in Regina, still starving for their first Stanley Cup 23 years after the club's inception in 2041, hope is not lost. Lane said he's confident any decision the committee reaches is unlikely to roll against the young left winger, although he didn't rule out the league ordering a capacity valve be installed in Bijral's lungs to limit their breathing advantage.

Lane's been vocal on viral media about the issue. "They'll take their time over the summer humming and hawing about it, wait till the last minute, then let him play next year. It might be another full season or two before they (the TNHL committee) finally formalize a ruling, but in the meantime, believe me, he'll play."

Olympic fallout

Will Bijral compete in Pyongyang 2066?

Shortly after the Trans-National Hockey League acknowledged Joseph Bijral's so-called superlungs, the sports world started buzzing with speculation about how an Olympic committee might approach the issue.

The IOC has a history of tougher rules, stricter policies and perhaps a higher moral obligation than private leagues. It's possible they might view Bijral's lungs as an unfair advantage, and decide to even the playing field, or ban him from competing.

With the 2066 Pyongyang

Winter Olympics looming, there is little doubt that Hockey Canada is watching the outcome of the TNHL committee decision with great interest.

A spokesperson told Metro that if Bijral was barred from Olympic participation, it would be a huge loss for the team, looking to redeem itself after a disappointing fourth-place finish in the last Winter Games. COLIN MCNEIL/METRO

'Not good enough'

Feds to strengthen oil-spill response

With a decision expected next month on the contentious Northern Gateway pipeline, the federal government announced new measures Tuesday to strengthen its oil-spill response regime.

Those changes include removing a $161-million cap on payouts from a national oil-spill compensation fund and making the $400-million fund available in case of a marine spill. The proposed changes failed to convert pipeline critics, who said the entire Canadian Ship-source Oil Pollution Fund wouldn't help much in a worst-case scenario spill off B.C.'s coast.

"That's really not good enough," said Art Sterritt, executive director of Coastal First Nations, who oppose the pipelines. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Calgary. Restaurant rewards family for their daughter's good behaviour

A Calgary family got a deal on their Mother's Day tiramisu after a restaurant rewarded them for having "well-behaved kids."

Carino Japanese Bistro took $5 off the family's $54 bill because their one-year-old daughter displayed good manners.

The parents were so impressed by the discount, they posted a pic of their receipt on Reddit.

While most Redditors simply marvelled at Alberta's lack of a provincial sales tax, others questioned the restaurant's decision.

"A 'well-behaved' one-year old is sort of just rewarding someone for random chance," wrote one.

"Yeah that's not good parenting, you just happen to be in the restaurant between meltdowns," penned another.

Victim's mother worries bill could harm privacy

Cyberbullying. Carol Todd, mother of Amanda Todd, who committed suicide in 2012, says 'we should not have to choose between our privacy and our safety'

The mother of a B.C. teen who took her own life after she was sexually exploited online says a proposed crackdown on cyberbullying goes too far.

Carol Todd, whose daughter Amanda died by suicide in 2012, said Tuesday that she believes portions of Bill C-13 that could trample privacy rights should be removed from the legislation.

"We should not have to choose between our privacy and our safety," Todd told a House of Commons committee that's studying the legislation.

"We should not have to sacrifice our children's privacy rights to make them safe from cyberbullying, 'sextortion' and revenge pornography."

But Glenford Canning, the father of another prominent cyberbullying victim, Rehtaeh Parsons, told the committee the bill should be passed re-

Privacy concerns

Companies are currently allowed under law to disclose personal information as part of a police investigation, but can insist on a court order.

- Ottawa law professor Michael Geist said Bill C-13 makes it more likely companies will disclose information without a warrant, because it removes any legal risks associated with making such disclosures.

gardless of concerns about private information.

"It seems so out of place to complain about privacy while our children openly terrorize each other to death for 'likes' on Facebook," Canning said.

Both parents were part of a panel of victims and victims' families who appeared Tuesday before the Commons justice committee.

NDP MP Francoise Boivin sided with Todd, saying she's worried the entire law could be rendered useless if it faced a successful court challenge over privacy concerns.

She, too, urged the committee to hivel off the more controversial portions of the bill so it could be passed more quickly.

But that's not likely to happen, Justice Minister Peter MacKay suggested Tuesday.

"The reality is that this bill is aimed at enabling police to more actively pursue online investigations for cyberbullying, but for other forms of cyber-crime," he said outside the House of Commons.

"And without that ability to pre-emptively prevent online crime we will not be able to save the lives of people like Amanda Todd, Rehtaeh Parsons and others."

Ottawa law professor Michael Geist has warned that C-13 - along with S-4, the Digital Privacy Act - would allow organizations to disclose subscriber or customer personal information without a court order.

The disclosures would also be kept secret from the people whose information is being shared.

Todd said that would amount to victims of online abuse being victimized twice.

"I don't want to see our children ... victimized again by losing privacy rights," she said. "I am troubled by some of these provisions condoning the sharing of Canadians' privacy information without proper legal process." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Terror suspect waits for ruling to clarify his fate

The fate of terror suspect Mohamed Harkat — and the controversial security certificate system being used to deport him — will become clearer Wednesday when the Supreme Court of Canada issues a long-awaited ruling.

But the Ottawa man's case has taken so many twists and turns over the last dozen years that the end of the road may still be some way off.

The high court will rule on the constitutionality of the certificate regime, a rarely used means of removing non-citizens suspected of involvement in extremism or espionage.

It is also slated to decide crucial issues related to evidence in the certificate case of Harkat, an Algerian refugee accused of terrorist ties.

Bill C-32. Ombudsman urges Tories to strengthen bill of rights for victims

The federal ombudsman for crime victims wants the Harper government's proposed victims bill of rights strengthened.

Sue O'Sullivan says the present legislation, Bill C-32, is welcome, but a few well-chosen amendments before it becomes law would do more to help people affected by crime.

"The introduction of a victims bill of rights marks a significant cultural shift in Canada towards a system that recognizes the important role that victims have to play and that more fully considers and integrates victims into Canada's criminal justice system," O'Sullivan said.

"That being said, the bill fails to fully address the breadth and depth of victims' needs and concerns. As the bill moves through the parliamentary process, I will be pushing for further change to strengthen the bill and I encourage all Canadians to do the same."

Her office had presented a sheaf of suggestions for inclusion in the legislation.

"When you look at some of the recommendations, we had almost 30 recommendations and I would say just about half were met either in whole or partially, but we still have work to do."

For instance, the bill leaves it to victims to enforce restitution orders against wrongdoers.

O'Sullivan argued that restitution orders are part of a criminal's sentence and should be enforced by the authorities, not by victims going to civil court.

Lac-Mégantic accused in court

Quebec train disaster.

Appearing in a makeshift courtroom in Lac-Mégantic, three accused men posted bail and were released

Three men arrested in the Lac-Mégantic train disaster were released Tuesday after being arraigned on 47 charges of criminal negligence causing death.

Thomas Harding, Jean Demaitre and Richard Labrie each had to post $15,000 bail after appearing in a makeshift courtroom in Lac-Mégantic.

They were then freed on various conditions pending their next court appearance on Sept. 11. They can't change their address and can't work in the rail industry without proper supervision.

Forty-seven people were killed after a runaway train carrying crude oil derailed in Lac-Mégantic in the wee hours of last July 6 before it exploded.

Harding had completed his shift as the train's engineer earlier that evening and left the train unattended to sleep at a local inn.

The Crown has identified Labrie, 55, as the railway traffic controller and Demaitre, 50, as the manager of train operations.

The insolvent Montreal, Maine and Atlantic Railway faces the same criminal charges.

Earlier on Tuesday, Harding's lawyer blasted as "brutal" the manner in which they stormed into his client's residence to arrest him.

"It was the kind of arrest you would do for some heavily armed Hells Angel," said Thomas Walsh. "Basically, the whole SWAT squad was there to arrest one guy who has been living in the same place since this tragedy happened ... They are just killing a mouse with a cannon," Walsh said.

A conviction on charges of criminal negligence causing death carries a maximum life sentence.

• "That there are criminal charges, I think it's important," said Karine Blanchette, an employee of the Musi-Café, the establishment in the heart of town where many people died. "Finally, there's justice. But it does not bring back the people we lost and our heritage. The pollution in our environment will also remain."

• Crown spokesman Rene Verret said prosecutors decided to file these charges after an analysis of the evidence. But these men might not be the only ones charged. Several civil suits have been filed, but the criminal charges mark a first.

Bill C-23. Harper's 'Fair Elections Act' passes

The Conservatives have used their majority muscle in the House of Commons to pass a controversial bill that makes sweeping changes to election laws.

Bill C-23, dubbed the Fair Elections Act, passed by a vote of 146 to 123.

The bill was virtually universally panned by electoral experts when it was first introduced and it has been a controversial piece of legislation.

The Harper government modified or removed some of the most contentious provisions — including backing down on plans to eliminate vouching, muzzle the chief electoral officer and create a loophole that would allow rich, established parties to spend untold millions more during election campaigns.

But the changes weren't enough to mollify opposition parties. The bill now moves to the Conservative-dominated Senate for approval.

U.S. aircraft searching for Nigerian schoolgirls

Foreign assistance.

Britain and the U.S. are now actively helping Nigeria's government to rescue the girls

A Nigerian government official said "all options are open" in efforts to rescue almost 300 abducted schoolgirls from their captors as U.S. reconnaissance aircraft started flying over the West African country in a search effort.

According to a senior defence official in Washington, the U.S. is using a manned MC-12 surveillance aircraft, which is based in Niger, to conduct missions in Nigeria. In addition to the turboprop model which has seen heavy use in Afghanistan, U.S. officials are also considering the use of drones. At this point the surveillance missions are

Families to view video released by Boko Haram

Boko Haram, the group that kidnapped the girls last month from a school in Borno state, released a video Monday purporting to show some of the girls.

The group's leader, who appears separately, says in the video: "I swear to almighty Allah, you will not see them again until you release our brothers that you have captured." He has previously threatened to sell the girls into slavery.

Hussein Monguno, an official with a civic group called the Borno Yobe People's Forum, said representatives of the families of the missing girls had been invited to the Borno governor's residence in the Nigerian capital of Abuja to view the video to see if they can "verify" that their children are in the video.

Britain, which has dispatched security experts to Nigeria, said it is looking to offer "longer-term counter-terrorism solutions to prevent such attacks in the future and defeat Boko Haram."

The U.S. is sharing commercial satellite imagery with the Nigerian government and is flying manned intelligence, surveillance and reconnaissance aircraft over Nigeria with the Nigerian government's permission, a senior U.S. official said on Monday.

Nigeria's government initially suggested there would be no negotiations with Boko Haram, but it appears that stance may be relaxed.

Mike Omeri, the director of the government's information agency, said the government will "use whatever kind of action" it takes to free the girls. He also warned that a military operation, with foreign help, was possible.

"At the moment, because all options are open we are interacting with experts, military and intelligence experts from other parts of the world," he said late Monday.

The official News Agency of Nigeria said that President Goodluck Jonathan on Tuesday asked the National Assembly to extend for another six months the state of emergency in Borno and two other northeastern states. Ukraine skeptical about plan pushed by Germany

Germany's foreign minister tried to broker quick talks between Ukraine's central government and pro-Russia separatists. However, Ukraine remained skeptical Tuesday as fighting claimed six more lives in the restive east.

Six Ukrainian servicemen were ambushed and killed and eight others wounded Tuesday afternoon outside the town of Kramatorsk, which is in the Donetsk region, one of two in eastern Ukraine that declared independence on Monday. They were attacked by at least 30 insurgents using grenade launchers and automatic weapons.

The plan laid out by the Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe, a trans-Atlantic security group, calls on all sides to refrain from violence and urges amnesty for those involved in the unrest as well as talks on decentralization and the status of the Russian language.

But Ukrainian officials sounded skeptical Tuesday about the OSCE plan. Speaking in Brussels, acting Prime Minister Arseniy Yatsenyuk thanked the OSCE but said Ukraine has drawn up its own "road map" for ending the crisis and noted the people of his country should settle the issue themselves.

Russia, meanwhile, called Tuesday for a swift implementation of the OSCE plan, saying its demand to end violence means that Kyiv should stop its military operation to recapture buildings in the east, lift its blockade of cities and towns, pull its forces from eastern regions and release all insurgents. It added that it expects separatists in Ukraine's Donetsk and Luhansk regions to respond in kind if Kyiv does.

Yevhen Perebiynis, spokesman for the Ukrainian foreign ministry, lamented Tuesday that the OSCE deal does not specifically oblige Russia to do anything.

MESSY, RUDE AND WORTH EVERY OFFENCE

Most people have heard about the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms, but it seems to have escaped the notice of the people who run Instagram (the same people who run Facebook).

Especially this bit — Section 2(b): “Everyone has the following fundamental freedoms: Freedom of thought, belief, opinion and expression, including freedom of the press and other media of communication.”

Like, Instagram?

With exquisite timing, just before Mother’s Day, Instagram shut down Heather Bays’ account because it featured pictures of her breastfeeding her 20-month old daughter. Heather, who’s originally from Winnipeg and now lives in Toronto, may have thought she was sharing a beautiful picture celebrating motherhood with her community, but Instagram apparently thought she was trafficking in child pornography.

another one exposed a full breast and someone took offence and complained.

Let’s remember that Heather Bays is a maternity photographer. Unlike millions of moronic selfies, her photos are actually good.

Meanwhile, over in Vancouver, people are trying to get Dr. Seuss banned again. This time, it’s If I Ran the Zoo, because there’s a line about zoo helpers who “all wear their eyes at a slant” alongside illustrations of Asian stereotypes. While this was all viewed as perfectly acceptable back in 1950, it is offensive through a 2014 lens.

The Vancouver Public Library is resisting the call for the ban, wisely recognizing that if they ban Dr. Seuss, they would have to ban half the world’s literature, from Sophocles to the Arabian Nights.

At one time or another, everything and everyone offends. These days, everyone is offended. I don’t envy the gatekeepers. When everything is offensive, what do you do?

If you ask me, it’s simple. Just remember the Nazis. They loved to find things offensive. They burned books and banned works of art because they were decadent or written by Jews. The Nazis weren’t interested in freedom of thought, belief, etc. In fact, they loathed and opposed such things.

Good thing we’re not like the Nazis, eh?

Look. As far as I’m concerned, lots of things are offensive. There are times when I wish country music, Hallmark greeting cards and cat videos were ruthlessly suppressed. But then I come to my senses.

We need to remember the great value of freedom. Right now in Nigeria, hundreds of schoolgirls have been kidnapped by narrow-minded extremists to prevent them from being exposed to western education. This is the logical dead end of censorship. Freedom is messy, rude and annoying, but it beats oppression and slavery every time.

So let’s cut everyone a little slack. As far as I know, the Charter of Rights and Freedoms doesn’t protect your right to be offended.

At least not yet.

Q&A

Shelling out for a new look

‘Shell suits’ are back in fashion — for tortoises and snails at least. The made-to-measure, tea cosy-style crochet designs that snugly fit any shelled frame are the work of Katie Bradley. The project has fast become a sell-out success with orders coming in from all over the world and Bradley now offers 25 designs, including shark and stegosaurus outfits on Etsy.com. The U.S.-based crocheter tells Metro about the family joke that became a fashion phenomenon.

The fashion industry is notoriously fast-paced with its constantly changing trends. Will you be offering seasonal collections or are you happy to continue crocheting at a snail’s pace? Quite a few of my designs already are seasonal. I am working on several patriotic Independence Day designs, and also have plans for some new Halloween tortoise cosies (one design looks like an eyeball). I’ve also made some more glamorous designs for clients by incorporating sequins and beads by special request.

Sequins and beads sound like you’re heading into couture. Are the cosies only for special occasions? The snails only wear their cosies for photo ops. The rest of the time they’re happy to dine nude in my garden.

Of course. Why is there such demand for what’s a frankly bizarre item? Tortoise keepers love their tortoises. Often the critter has been in the family for a long time, and is considered a part of the family. People like to dress up their dogs, cats, chickens and frogs... so dressing up a tortoise isn’t such a strange idea. OK, it is a strange idea, but is a very cute strange idea.

Public urination, prepare for a takedown

metronews.ca

Public urination is a serious problem in many countries, and India is no exception. With that in mind, a group called The Clean Indian has set a water tanker with a rude name into the streets of Mumbai to take a highly-pressurized stand.

While it is amusing to watch ne’er-do-wells walloped by a water wall, it’s important to note that critics in India are rightfully pointing out flaws in The Clean Indian’s approach. Namely, a lack of public toilets in many of India’s more crowded communities, and much more importantly, a massive waste of fresh water in a world where far too many don’t have access to it. (Via The Clean Indian/YouTube)

Turn the fables on baseball

Diamond movies.

Baseball brings out fantastic sports stories that audiences love

Richard Crouse
scene@metronews.ca

"I still get such a bang out of it," says Buck Weaver (John Cusack) in Eight Men Out, "playing ball."

Given the number of sports movies that have been released in the last 30 years, apparently audiences also get a bang out of watching films about baseball.

This weekend, Jon Hamm stars in a new ball picture, Million Dollar Arm. The Mad Men star plays real-life sports agent J.B. Bernstein who recruited Indian cricket players Rinku Singh and Dinesh Patel for the Pittsburgh Pirates.

It's an unconventional baseball movie, but there seems to be something about the sport that lends itself to fantastic stories and fables.

Roger Ebert called Field of Dreams, "a religious picture," then added, "but the religion is baseball." In this 1989 hit Kevin Costner plays an Iowa corn farmer who hears a mysterious voice. "If you build it, he will come." The "it" is a baseball diamond and the "he" is Shoeless Joe Jackson, the legendary outfielder for the disgraced 1919 Chicago White Sox.

The movie uses a baseball theme as a backdrop for a story about following your dreams, believing in the impossible and the idea that baseball was "a symbol of all that was once good in America."

The film struck a chord with audiences and tourists alike. Since its release, the field built for the film in Dubuque County, Iowa has attracted hundreds of thousands of people, and spawned new restaurants, shops, a hotel, all in a town of only 4,000 people.

Robert Redford's film The Natural looks to Arthurian legends for its story. Redford plays Roy Hobbs, a young pitcher with natural ability. Cut down in his prime by a tragic accident, he disappears, only to return many years later to become a star at an age when most players are hanging up their gloves. "It took me 16 years to get here," he says. "You play me, and I'll give you the best I got."

The Holy Grail of baseball

Based on a novel by Bernard Malamud, the characters in The Natural each represent a person from ancient literature.

- There are elements of Round Table Knight Percival's pursuit of the Holy Grail present in Hobbs' story.
- He's a Knight (literally, his team is called The Knights) who must bring back the Grail, or pennant, to team manager Pop Fisher, whose name is an alias for the Fisher King, keeper of the Grail.

- If you think that is reading too much into the story, perhaps Woody Allen in Zelig is more your speed. "I love baseball. You know it doesn't have to mean anything, it's just beautiful to watch."

Q&A

Lake Bell the next Sandra Bullock?

Million Dollar Arm producer likens his casting of Lake Bell — known for more comic acting and for directing last year's In a World — as Jon Hamm's love interest in the true baseball tale to when he cast an unknown Sandra Bullock in While You Were Sleeping nearly 20 years ago. "She's got a great career in front of her," Roth says. So, no pressure, right Lake?

I was wondering, after Joe Roth made the Sandra Bullock comparison, if you're feeling any extra career pressure already.

I was like, "Damn, Joe." We'll see how that plays out (laughs). No, I was hugely flattered just because obviously I love Sandra Bullock, and she's fantastic ... It was hugely complimentary. And it legitimately made me blush.

You have such a great, easy time riffing with Jon.

Jon and I are lucky because we've been pals for such a long time, though this is the first time that we got to do a movie together. We do Children's Hospital, but he just rolls in when he wants to for an episode here or there while we're doing the show. This was fun because we were on equal ground in scenes and got to sink our teeth into something. But yeah, I think that kind of banter is something that we both enjoy.

Jackson sings from beyond the grave

Xscape. Second posthumous album from the King of Pop updates eight tracks that he almost finished during his lifetime

The response to Michael Jackson's first album from beyond the grave, 2010's Michael, was so universally hostile one wonders why the late King of Pop's estate and Epic Records would go the posthumous route again.

Actually, scratch that: We know why they've dared go there again. Nearly five years on from his death at 50 on June 25, 2009, Jackson remains a fairly surefire money-maker.

The 2009 tour documentary, This Is It, did strong business; there have been two hugely successful Cirque du Soleil productions mounted in the late singer's honour, and even the execrable Michael — an album of scraps so insulting to Jackson's legacy that his own family questioned whether it was actually Michael singing on the thing — managed to log platinum sales in 18 countries.

This time, the tactic has been to "contemporize" eight tracks that Jackson left lying around in close to complete form during his lifetime under the guidance of executive producer Timbaland and Epic Records head L.A. Reid.

One rule, according to Xscape's liner notes, was that they had to contain Jackson's vocals "from top to bottom" so the listener would hear the songs as he wanted them sung, not Frankensteined together from half a dozen demos.

The new versions are respectfully handled by Timbaland and a couple of other studio heavyweights — Rodney Jerkins on Xscape, StarGate on A Place With No Name.

Opener Love Never Felt So Good, a Paul Anka co-write dating from just after Thriller in 1983, is classic, breezy, young Jackson in the Off the Wall mould and really doesn't need the single version featuring Justin Timberlake currently making the rounds to sell itself.

Loving You is a bit of feather-weight sweetness from the Bad

Deluxe edition

- If you get your hands on the "deluxe" edition of Xscape, you get Jackson's original, work-in-progress recordings of the same eight tunes and they're all, almost without exception, perfectly fine the way they were.
- Jackson might not have whipped these versions into final shape, but they were at least heading down the path he intended and they're interesting documents for that reason.

era with a chorus that creeps up on you. A Place With No Name transforms America's Horse With No Name into a terse, squiggly funk jam.

The bone-rattling electro-assault of Slave to the Rhythm, meanwhile, features an impressively gravelly vocal turn from Jackson and serves as a reminder of what a gifted singer the man was. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Legal Matters

The lawyer's role in rehabilitation

James Vigmond,
Personal Injury Alliance

Q In a personal injury case where someone has been catastrophically injured, how is the lawyer involved in rehabilitation?

A While one of the lawyer's roles is to sue the at-fault parties for damages, another equally important role is to ensure access to the best health-care professionals in order to maximize recovery. That is why it is important to hire a firm that specializes in personal injury, such as a member firm of the Personal Injury Alliance, which has access to a wide network of privately-funded health-care professionals. The lawyer and the firm's accident benefits specialist will meet with rehabilitation professionals and assemble the health-care team.

Q Will the lawyer fully understand the medical complexities of the injury?

A Yes. Understanding the short- and long-term impact of an injury is a prerequisite to the lawyer being able to engage the services of the right health-care experts. For example, how will the injury affect a person in terms of income earning capacity, mobility, and support needs? Will the condition deteriorate in future and, if so, how might that affect the person's personal and economic situation? Having this knowledge will help the lawyer dedicate their efforts to improving the injured party's rehabilitation and recovering maximum compensation for their injuries.

Q What if a client is not happy with someone on their health-care team?

A Speak to the lawyer. It is the lawyer's role to make sure the health-care provider is the right fit with the client and the health-care team. If this isn't the case, the lawyer will work with the case manager to find someone who fits the bill in expertise, personality and team vision.

Montreal duo Chromeo ready to raise eyebrows

White Women.

Musicians, who blend disco, rock and funk with humour, say album title is meant to be provocative

Sitting a few feet in front of the Danforth Music Hall stage — which features a keyboard perched atop plastic high-heeled female legs — Chromeo's Dave Macklovitch steers a conversation about the Montreal duo's new album into a discussion about the persistent female imagery in their music.

It's natural, really, given that the title of their just-released album is White Women. Although that references a 1976 book by late German fashion photographer Helmut Newton, Chromeo gravitated toward the name for its potential to provoke.

Macklovitch said he had to sell that title to partner Patrick Gemayel. They were both "very hesitant," but ultimately decided that it had the iconic flair of an old Roxy Music, David Bowie or Van Halen record.

Though they intended to raise eyebrows, Macklovitch is eager to confront the notion that the Juno-nominated outfit — which blends disco, yacht rock and funk with goofy-hearted humour — is sexist to any degree.

"I feel like people who view our visual language as objectifying are taking it too literally — because what we reference is not the concept of women, it's an era and an atmosphere," he said during a recent interview.

"Our iconography ... doesn't refer to actual female legs to say that the legs are pretty when they're skinny and you should chop them off and put a keyboard on top, because that would be really offensive even to us. It refers to a whole atmosphere: late '70s, early '80s, erotic, kind of soft rock."

The title, Macklovitch says, works on multiple levels. "It's highbrow and low-brow," he added.

It's the sort of contradictory balance Chromeo has always tried to strike. Similarly, the duo is simultaneously retro and modern, slick and gawkish, arrogant and neurotic, goofy and yet determined to build a catalogue that stands up to those of their musical heroes.

That ambition is especially obvious on White Women, an album they worried over for two years, packed with guest stars (including Solange, Toro Y Moi and Vampire Weekend's Ezra Koenig) and sleek mini-epics that discard the careful brevity of previous records.

"We had a lot to prove," said Macklovitch, seated next to Gemayel. "Everything's harder on album No. 4. But for a lot of bands, sometimes that's when the accomplished version of the band appears."

Their comedic lyrics again offer an arch look at relationships, and again Macklovitch balances smug shtick with funny admissions of self-doubt. Insecurity is a persistent lyrical theme, on groovy single Jealous (I Ain't With

It), Over Your Shoulder and Sexy Socialite.

"There's gotta be juxtaposition," Macklovitch said. "Because a song like Over Your Shoulder, for instance, when you hear the music, it's normally very Playboy, Barry White stuff. So we decided to make it a feminist anthem."

"I'm sure tons of singer/songwriters have touched that subject but never on our type of music," Gemayel piped in. "Two guys that look like us and sound like us."

"We started out on Needy Girl — we had a dance track about someone being annoying," Macklovitch added, referencing their breakthrough 2004 single. "That was always our blueprint."

When the pair emerged a decade ago, many critics figured their obsession with then-unfashionable influences — blue-eyed soul and disco, performing on sleazy synths and talkboxes — was intended as winking irony.

Those attitudes have gradually evolved, to the point where Daft Punk's disco-indebted throwback Random Access Memories was serenaded as album of the year at January's Grammy Awards.

Solange vs. Jay Z: The aftermath

MELINDA TAUB

Metro World News

I'm not going to lie. This item is mostly an excuse to once again watch the amazing footage of Solange Knowles attacking her brother-in-law, Jay Z, after the Met Gala.

I know everybody watched it at least three times on Monday (once when the news broke on TMZ, once when the extended footage came out, and once later to point out to your friends how Beyoncé just stood there) but it will never be enough. Apparently Solange was on a bit of a tear all evening. Earlier at the same Met Gala after-party at The Standard hotel, Solange yelled at designer Rachel Roy, sources tell Us Weekly. One source says Beyoncé "got in the middle of" her sister's fracas with Roy; another source said Roy was just one of a group Solange harangued.

This still doesn't tell us what had Solange so riled up. However, she did delete all of her shots of Beyoncé from her Instagram account on Monday, save for this one from 2013, with music video director Melina Matsoukas.

What does it all mean? Alas, we do not know. The Jay/Bey PR machine is just too powerful to let the real story out. I guess the only comfort we have in these troubled times is to watch the footage again.

Alec pedals his way to a pair of handcuffs

Actor Alec Baldwin was arrested and issued two summonses after allegedly acting belligerently toward two officers who had stopped him for riding his bicycle the wrong way down a New York City street, police said Tuesday.

The 30 Rock star was riding his bike the wrong way at 16th Street and Fifth Avenue near Union Square Park in Manhattan when he was stopped at about 10:15 a.m. and asked to show identification, they said.

Police say Baldwin, 56, refused to show his ID and acted belligerently, prompting the officers to handcuff him and take him to a nearby precinct.

Baldwin was issued two summonses — for riding a bike the wrong way down a street and for disorderly conduct — and was then released, police said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dive into the cocktails and culture that Curacao offers

So much to C. This Dutch island offers a multicultural experience and some of the finest diving in the world

Curacao (pronounced KEWR-E-SOW) is a Dutch island in the Caribbean and the "C" in the ABC islands alongside Aruba and Bonaire.

Located just off the coast of Venezuela, the island features a unique multicultural mix, playing home to 150,000 residents who hail from 55 different countries.

The island also offers visitors plenty of opportunities to lie on sun-soaked white sandy beaches; to go on underwater adventures via top-rated scuba diving sites; to see the colonial charms of its capital, Willemstad; and sample cocktails spiked with Curacao's iconic blue liqueur.

Curacao's premiere 366-room property, Santa Barbara Beach and Golf Resort, is a short 30-minute drive from the airport and situated between the Caribbean Sea and Spanish Water Bar.

The resort's sprawling property features an 18-hole championship golf course designed by Pete Dye, as well as a spa, tennis courts, bike rental, 120-slip marina, four restaurants, three pools and inviting beach.

In 2013, Scuba Diving Magazine ranked Curacao as One of the World's Best Dive Destinations. Those looking for adventure in a lively underwater world can do so with Ocean Encounters, which has a little office set up at the end of Santa Barbara's beach. Morning departures include two dives at Director's Bay and Newport — a perfect opportunity to swim with giant sea turtles while schools of several hundred bright yellow fish descend along a colourful coral wall.

Ocean Encounters offers underwater adventures. ANDREW DOBSON/METRO

Those looking to hop off the beach and indulge in an afternoon of rest and relaxation are offered a perfect sanctuary at Atabei Spa.

The inspiration for the Santa Barbara's luxury spa stems from the ancient culture and rituals of the Arawak people, the original inhabitants of the island. Spa guests enjoy a co-ed relaxation lounge featuring complimentary refreshments and spa food before being escorted to their very own private suite which includes a personal vanity, rain shower and outdoor relaxation patio.

Enjoy Atabei's signature treatment, the Stemps Massage, which incorporates classic hands-on technique with sachets of locally grown herbs dipped in warm organic oil.

Picturesque Willemstad is the capital of Curacao and its historic centre can be found on UNESCO's World Heritage List. Willemstad is divided into two neighbourhoods, Otrobanda and Punda, located on either side of the city's canal.

You can easily explore the area on foot. Highlights include a stroll across the Queen Emma Pontoon Bridge, pastel-coloured colonial merchant houses lining Handelskade, shopping at the Floating Market where farmers from South America and the West Indies sell fresh produce and seafood and eating at one of the al fresco restaurants at the old Waterfort Arches.

Perched above the crash of ocean waves, dinner here is an ideal final feast perfect for taking in one last jaw-dropping sunset.

Pack like a pro

1. Start packing at least a week in advance, gathering things you'll need in the corner of one room. Write other items down on your phone as they occur to you. When the time comes, everything is either in the pile or in your pocket.

2. Pack a fold-up nylon bag in case you shop too hard and need extra carrying power.

3. Go miniature with toiletries.

4. Pack a second credit card, in case you lose your wallet.

Departure screen in your pocket

The FlightBoard app puts airport arrivals and departures screens right in the palm of your hand. Perfect for frequent fliers, and for those skipping the check-in desk completely, it gives you real-time flight status and gate information for more than 1,400 airlines at 3,000 airports, that you can also then share with all involved. It's designed to mimic the rather retro board at Charles de Gaulle airport. $3.99 at iTunes and Google Play.

Picasso problems. Parisians embroiled in controversy over museum, studio

Paris proudly hosted Picasso for decades, but two controversies around the artist's legacy are now haunting French officials.

One centres on the Paris Picasso Museum, where renovations have dragged for five years amid accusations of mismanagement, labour problems and clashes between the artist's family and the French government. The re-opening has been pushed back until September — after the summer tourist season.

The other controversy surrounds the fate of a Left Bank studio where Picasso lived and worked for 19 years, and painted his famed anti-war opus Guernica in 1937. A historic preservation panel is meeting Tuesday to decide what's next.

A legal group has owned the 17th-century manor containing the studio since before Picasso worked there, and now wants to renovate it — perhaps as a luxury hotel.

Some high-profile art lovers are up in arms and say the studio deserves state protection from redevelopment. The culture ministry last year ordered a one-year pause to any development while officials consider the implications. That expires in July.

Bucket List

Birthplace of Shakespeare

You don't have to be an English major to be moved by a visit to Stratford-upon-Avon, the birthplace of William Shakespeare. The bard's hometown is a vibrant overnight side trip you can easily make, about a two-hour train ride northwest of London. And like a lot of famous out-of-the-way destinations, there is a tawdry, touristy side thriving happily alongside the peaceful, countrified atmosphere of this city of 25,000 — riverboats, statues, swans and all. A visit to Shakespeare's birthplace is a must, where you can catch one of his plays being performed right on the premises. Go to visitbritain.com. DOUG WALLACE/METRO

Pet-friendly places.

Tired of begging hotels to house your furry friend? Check out these places that love four legs

ON THE MOVE

Loren Christie
life@metronews.ca

If you would prefer to bring your four-legged family member along on your next holiday, consider one of these pet-friendly destinations across the country.

White Point Beach Resort in Liverpool, N.S. has been welcoming pets — including dogs, cats and ferrets — for 86 years. With 800 acres of property that sweeps along a one-kilometre stretch of white sand beach this is an animal paradise. There are tether stations with water bowls throughout the property, poop bag and disposal stations and a full line of pet products in the gift shop. For those who want to be productive on vacation, the resort provides training classes on several weekends throughout the summer. You will need to keep your pet on leash while out and about.

Located in Quebec's Laurentian Mountains, minutes from Tremblant, the Domaine claims to be the country's first bed and breakfast for dogs. There are groomed hiking trails for walks, a beautiful lake and services that include a doggie spa and grooming salon, a special pet menu and a Tail Waggin' Day Camp if you need some time away from the children. Guests stay in fully equipped log cabin cottages. Owner Birgit Schultz has two cats and eight Bernese Mountain dogs ready to welcome you.

Taking place in Toronto on May 24 and May 25 at Woodbine Beach, Woofstock is the largest outdoor festival for dogs in North America. This free event launched in 2003 now regularly draws 300,000 dog lovers and their four-footed friends. You will find vendors displaying canine fashions, food and furnishings. For a good laugh, check out the stupid trick contest. Finding a hotel that will accept your whole family shouldn't be a problem; according to PetHotels.com, Toronto leads the country in pet-friendly properties with 84 hotels prepared to lay out the welcome mat for Fido.

Alberta's Fairmont Jasper Park Lodge provides furry guests with dishes, a dog bed, detailed trail maps, poop bags and home-baked pet treats. If you are game for a last-minute getaway, the hotel is celebrating the upcoming May Long Weekend with a three-day dog-stravaganza. Your pooch will enjoy time at the Doggy Spa, costume parties, guided hikes and jogs, and organic dog treat cooking demos. Meals are included in the package and will take place outdoors, with specialty barbecues at the Outdoor Activity Centre and on the shores of tranquil Trefoil Lake. With nearly 700 acres of terrain the resort offers both on- and off-leash options for the weekend.

The best course of action

Stay on track, online.

It's easy to log out of a professional development course when your only kick in the butt comes from a computer. Here's how to stay with the program

SIDNEYEYE MATRIX
TalentEgg.ca

In April 2014 a Totaljobs.com survey of over 8,000 job seekers found that seven out of 10 respondents feel today's employers expect them to be more qualified than ever before.

To meet those expectations, 80 per cent of the survey participants said they would be up for taking a

Barrier: Time

Time and project management is a challenge for most of us.

- When life gets hectic, without a face-to-face instructor cracking the proverbial whip, it's ridiculously easy for online course commitments to drift to the bottom of your to-do list.
- Solution: Verify expectations for time-on-task before signing up for an online course, and immediately transfer all deadlines to your regular weekly schedule. Block off periods for online study time and treat that time as an inflexible appointment you cannot miss.

If you're a sociable person who prefers group work and discussions, you might fare better in a traditional classroom setting rather than an online course. ISTOCK training course if it led to more job offers.

In spite of the obvious convenience factor and other possible cost savings, only half (49 per cent) of those job seekers confirmed they would prefer to complete that professional development training online, rather than on campus or in a traditional classroom setting.

Apparently online learning isn't for everyone. And there's plenty of research to support that claim.

A case in point: a 2013 study by the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Education followed the activity of about one million online adult learners to track their progress in a series of free post-secondary web courses.

The result? Researchers found that course completion rates were an abysmal four per cent. Would the attrition rates for free or paid professional development or certification courses be any better?

Considering these studies and statistics, if three quarters of job seekers believe they need extra professional development to secure a good employment position, and fully half of them would be willing to study online, it's critically important to confirm that candidates are well-suited to succeed in an online training classroom. Because job seekers, of all people, don't have time or money to waste.

So what keeps adult learners from sticking with and succeeding in online courses and job training?

Barrier: Motivation

It can be surprisingly difficult to stay on-task, enthusiastic, and interested when studying online and independently. To this end, unless the content is genuinely of interest and presented in a dynamic and easy-to-understand format, you may find your attention waning, while deadlines get missed.

Solution: Take the course with a study-buddy, or form an independent study group to help keep each other on track for timely progress and course completion.

Barrier: Isolation

Everyone has a preferred learning style.

If you're a sociable person who prefers group work and class discussions, an on-demand, asynchronous (at your own pace, no required meetings), e-correspondence style course isn't likely to be a good fit.

However, today it's easy to find "online learning social communities which cater to all learning styles, all skill sets and personalities, native abilities and educational needs," observes career expert Meghan M. Biro in Forbes. You just need to find your niche.

Solution: Do some Googling to discover training that is social-by-design, that includes opportunities for online discussion, live webinars, delivers frequent instructor or peer feedback, or uses social media to create cohesion and community between participants

Land a job in social media. How to stand out in a massive pool of pictures, posts and pins

LAUREN MARINIGH
TalentEgg.ca

It's probably one of the most sought-after jobs for Gen Y. I mean, who wouldn't dream about getting paid to be on social media?

But believe it or not, working in social media isn't as easy as you may think. Just because you're really clever on Twitter, share great selfies on Instagram, or have 1,000 friends on Facebook, doesn't mean you are going to land a job in social media.

So how can you get into this industry, what is required of you — and what should you be doing to stand out?

Understanding social media

It's one thing to be on every latest and greatest social

Employers want to see that you have a strong reputation, you're actively posting and you show an overall interest in this industry. ISTOCK media platform, but you have to make sure you are using these platforms in the right way and have an in-depth understanding of how to use these platforms for business.

Everyone can have Facebook, Instagram, Vine, etc. and have a good understanding of using it, but personal use and business use are entirely different.

Lucky for you, there are a lot of resources available online.

Read blogs, attend free webinars, follow brands and people that are doing an excellent job in the social media realm.

Realize that social media is always changing, so it's going to require you to stay on top of it. Do your research and always be on the lookout for ways to improve your skill set.

Your social media presence

If you want to work in social media, you should probably make sure you have a pretty rockin' social media presence yourself.

I have a professional Twitter account that I use to share industry-related content, join in on conversations with other professionals and stay up to date with agencies and industry professionals.

I also have a personal account to post those useless tweets about what I'm eating for dinner.

Work on building your social media presence and make sure you are easy to find. Employers will look this up, especially if you're applying for a job in social media.

Working in social media isn't just about loving the latest and greatest platforms. You have to be able to support your love for social media with knowledge and experience.

Lucky for you, social media is easily accessible to anyone so you can start learning with just a click of your mouse.

Grilling Week. Ahead of May Long Weekend, Metro has offered you a lean burger idea and a unique way to serve lamb. These turkey satays, meanwhile, serve two purposes

DINNER EXPRESS
Emily Richards
food@metronews.ca

Getting together with friends for the long weekend may mean packing up and heading away or meeting at a friend's backyard.

It's always a great idea to offer to bring something that can be made ahead with little fuss to prepare and then have it ready to serve up or grill

Ingredients

Peanut Sauce

- 1/3 cup (75 ml) peanut butter
- 1/4 cup (50 ml) warm water
- 2 tbsp (25 ml) hoisin sauce
- 1 tsp (5 ml) grated fresh ginger or 1/2 tsp (2 ml) ground
- 2 tbsp (25 ml) seasoned rice vinegar
- 2 tbsp (25 ml) sodium reduced soy sauce
- 1 tsp (5 ml) sesame oil
- 1/2 tsp (2 ml) Asian garlic chili paste/sauce

Turkey Satays

- 1 large boneless skinless turkey breast (about 1 1/2 lb/750 g)
- 2 tbsp (25 ml) sodium reduced soy sauce
- 2 tsp (10 ml) sesame oil
- 2 tsp (10 ml) grated fresh ginger or 1 tsp (5 ml) ground
- 1 large clove garlic, grated

START TO FINISH ABOUT 28 MINUTES

This recipe yields about 15-20 skewers with 1 cup (250 ml) of peanut sauce. CONTRIBUTED when you get there.

Looking for a recipe that serves two purposes? This Grilled Turkey Satays with Peanut Sauce dish can be prepared for dinner or as an appetizer! Served over basmati rice, it makes a great meal or it works just on its own with drinks to get the party started.

Look for boneless skinless turkey breasts in your local grocer. And not to worry if you don't find any. Simply pick up a turkey breast and remove the skin and bone to slice up into thin strips for the satays.

If you are going to serve them up as a dinner dish, there's no need to skewer. Just you cut the breast into larger pieces and grill to enjoy.

1. Peanut Sauce: In a bowl, whisk together peanut butter, water and hoisin sauce until smooth. Add ginger, vinegar, soy sauce, sesame oil and chili paste and whisk

FLASH FOOD

From your fridge to your table in 30 minutes or less

Cooking tips

- Use a microplane or fine grater to grate ginger and garlic for a fine puree that's absorbed into the turkey when marinating.
- Soak wooden skewers in water for at least 30 minutes before using to reduce flare-ups on the grill.
- Marinate turkey strips in resealable plastic bag and freeze for up to 2 weeks. Perfect to take to the cottage. Let it thaw in the cooler so it's ready when you get there!

until combined. Cover and refrigerate until ready to serve.

2. Using a chef's knife, the cut turkey crosswise into thin slices (about 1/4-inch thick) and place into a large bowl. Add the soy sauce, sesame oil, ginger and garlic; stir to coat well. Let stand for 15 minutes or cover and refrigerate for up to 8 hours.

3. Using small soaked skewers thread turkey onto skewers and place on platter. Place skewers on greased grill over medium high heat and grill, turning once for about 6 minutes or until no longer pink inside.

4. Serve with peanut sauce. DEVELOPED FOR ONTARIO TURKEY

CFL draft

Stamps, Argos trade up for first and third picks

The Ottawa Redblacks gave up the first overall selection in the CFL draft Tuesday, sending the pick to the Calgary Stampeders along with the rights to non-import offensive lineman Marwan Hage in exchange for non-import offensive lineman Jon Gott.

The deal was announced 30 minutes prior to the start of the draft.

The Toronto Argonauts traded up to draft University of Manitoba running back Anthony Coombs third overall.

Brazil running out of time

World Cup. Stadiums still under construction just a month ahead of 64-match tournament

It's all coming down to the final 30 days.

Brazil had seven years to get ready for the World Cup, but it enters the final month of preparations with a lot yet to be done.

Three stadiums are still under construction, some of the temporary structures needed for matches are delayed and it remains unclear if all cities will have time to organize the mandatory fanfests.

It's already known that not all infrastructure will be completed no matter how much organizers rush before the June 12 opener. The government acknowledges that communications inside stadiums won't be perfect, unfinished airports remain a concern and there are widespread threats of violent protests by Brazilians complaining about the billions of dollars spent to organize the tournament.

Brazilian officials guarantee everything will be fine. FIFA remains concerned.

The long-term take

Brazil is expected to spend $11.7 billion on the World Cup, although the government says the country could receive an economic boost of as much as $180 billion long term.

"Everything will be in place for the World Cup in Brazil to be a success," Brazilian President Dilma Rousseff said Tuesday. "The stadiums will be ready, the airports will be ready, we are guaranteeing public safety."

Jerome Valcke, secretary general for soccer's governing body, says there's no time to waste.

"I would not say it's not ready, but it's not finished," he said recently.

Sam unfazed by media blitz

'I'm determined to be great.' First openly gay player to be drafted by an NFL team tackles throngs of the media

Michael Sam sure seems ready for all the attention.

The first openly gay player drafted by an NFL team was confident and engaged Tuesday as he was formally introduced by the St. Louis Rams, handling questions and scrutiny with aplomb well beyond that of a typical seventh-round fringe prospect.

"I'm determined to be great," Sam said.

Sam put his arm around coach Jeff Fisher after sharing the podium with other late-round picks, joked that he'd never before heard the term "tweener" and even rose in his chair in mock intimidation of fellow Missouri draftee E.J. Gaines, who'd been asked what the SEC co-defensive player of the year was like as a teammate.

Sam disagreed that his sexuality had been a secret at Missouri (he had come out to his teammates before last season). And he considers himself proof that it need not be a factor.

"It's OK to be who you are," Sam said. "It's OK to be comfortable in your own skin."

The appearance of perhaps the most famous seventh-round pick in NFL history attracted a massive throng. A half-dozen TV trucks lined a crammed parking lot at Rams Park, an hour before the team's two first-round picks were due at the podium.

"There's some energy here," general manager Les Snead said with a smile between rounds of interviews. "But I don't think this is a circus. This deserves attention but we'll get it over and we'll get to work."

Market position

The midsize sedan segment is packed with worthy competitors, but most are going exclusively to four-cylinder engines, some of them turbo-charged. The Camry is one of only a few with an available V6 engine.

Points

- V6 engines are often reserved for the top-line trim models in midsize cars, so it's nice to see it available in a lower level.
- The extensive makeover it'll get for 2015 is unusual this early in the model's life cycle, but Toyota wants to keep it fresh in this tough segment.

Review. The Toyota Camry proves its popularity with a multifaceted appeal

drive@metronews.ca

The Toyota Camry is North America's top-selling passenger car by volume, and it's not hard to see why. It hits a combination of roominess, performance, and price that buyers look for in the midsize sedan segment.

The Camry comes with a 2.5-litre four-cylinder engine, making 178 horsepower, starting at $23,750 (MSRP) and moving through three trim lines to a high of $30,560. I drove the optional 3.5-litre V6 engine, which makes 268 horsepower. It comes in two trim levels: my SE V6 tester, starting at $29,810, and the XLE V6 at $33,625.

Although slightly less fuel-efficient than some of its V6-equipped competitors, the Camry delivers linear acceleration, plenty of passing power at highway speeds, and smooth shifts from its six-speed automatic transmission.

The steering is light and the car is easy to manoeuvre; overall, it's a pleasant car to drive. It's also quiet, with a smooth ride that handles bumps quite well.

The exterior styling is a bit dull, but the interior is handsome, with controls that are easy to reach and use. There's lots of small-item space, including a covered cubby in the centre stack that hides the USB port and charging outlet, so you can plug in your devices and keep them away from prying eyes.

Every trim line includes a backup camera, Bluetooth wireless streaming, cruise control and heated mirrors, and everything except the base four-cylinder LE model comes with a navigation system, satellite radio, garage door opener, power driver's seat, and fog lamps. My tester included a premium package that adds leather heated seats and suede-like upholstery, and a blind spot monitoring system that warns if another vehicle is alongside when you're changing lanes.

The seats are comfortable and supportive, and there's good legroom in the back. The rear chairs fold down to open a pass-through from the trunk, but they don't fall completely flat.

Stayed tuned for 2015: The Camry will keep its engines and basic platform, but will sport completely new styling that will be bolder than what you've seen before.

Last-gen Outlander a confident bet

Second gear.

2007 to 2013
Mitsubishi Outlander

JUSTIN
drive@metronews.ca

The second-generation Mitsubishi Outlander was recently replaced by a new model for 2014, effectively moving the model fully into used crossover territory. Outlander was Mitsubishi's shot at the Honda CR-V, Toyota RAV4, Ford Escape, Subaru Forester, and a plethora of other crossover models.

Key draws? The Outlander has an extensive powertrain warranty with 160,000 kilometres of coverage and roadside assistance, top-rated crash-test performance, and decent overall bang-for-the-buck.

The test drive

Confirm all power windows are working properly, and can go up and down fully a few times in near silence without any grinding, clicking or binding noticed. Some owners of earlier models complain of power windows that stick, bind or even fall out of their tracks.

Check for proper air conditioner operation, noting that some owners have complained of premature failure of one or more air conditioner components that left the system inoperative.

If the model you're checking out has the automatic transmission/V6 combination, note that difficulty or an inability to shift out of park is typically caused by a faulty brake-pedal switch or solenoid in the gear shifter itself. These parts were updated in later Outlander models to address the issue, and aren't terribly problematic to fix if they are acting up.

For maximum peace of mind, have a dealer mechanic check for drive axle wear, worn out wheel-bearings and engine oil leaks.

What owners like

Outlander's pricing, feature-content bang-for-the-buck, extensive warranty coverage and safety scores attracted shoppers to showrooms initially, with adequate power output, smooth performance, that two-piece tailgate and decent rear-seat legroom sealing the deal.

What owners dislike

Common complaints include a cheap, plasticky interior, easily scratched surfaces and an audio display screen that's hard to read if the sun is shining on it.

Engines

Engine options were a 2.4-litre 168-horsepower four-cylinder or a 3-litre V6 with 220 to 230 horsepower depending on the year. Front- or four-wheel drive models were available.

The verdict

With Outlander's extensive warranty coverage and fairly short list of common problems, a used model with a thumbs-up from a mechanic prove a reliable crossover for years to come.

Lasers! Audi's new way to light up

Audi R8 LMX. Sports car slated to launch this summer will be world's first production vehicle equipped with laser lighting technology

The Audi R8 LMX will be the world's first production vehicle equipped with laser lighting technology. The 570hp sports car is slated to launch this summer.

Laser lighting has several advantages over traditional LED headlights, the first of which is better range in the high-beam mode. The R8 LMX, which has LED headlights for normal daytime use, has laser headlights that are activated at speeds of over 60 kilometres per hour to enhance visibility and safety. Sensors and cameras allow the car to detect the presence of an oncoming vehicle and adjust the position of the headlights to avoid blinding other drivers.

A combination of LED and laser headlights is also featured on the Audi R18 e-tron, which will become the first car with the technology to compete in the Le Mans 24 Hours Race (June 14-15).

Under its aluminum body, the Audi R8 LMX packs a 5.2-litre V10 engine with up to 570hp. The sports car boasts 0 to 100 kilometres per hour acceleration in just 3.4 seconds and can reach a top speed of around 320 kilometres per hour. The vehicle's fuel consumption averages 12.9 litres per 100 kilometres, or 299 grams per kilometre of CO2 emissions.

Produced in a limited edition and exclusively in blue, the Audi R8 LMX is expected to go on sale this summer. Prices have not yet been announced, although they will likely exceed $275,000.

Last January at CES 2014, the German manufacturer unveiled The Audi Sport Quattro Laserlight concept — a plug-in hybrid coupe. The model served as a showcase of the brand's latest developments in terms of hybrid engineering, driver controls, information display and lighting. AFP

Three checks for driving safely May Long Weekend

It's finally here! May is a beauty of a month for a drive, but stay alert to potential dangers on the road this season

JUSTIN
drive@metronews.ca

At long last, springtime 2014 is finally here to stay! Canadians have suffered a miserable winter of epic proportions, and many of us will soon hit the road with some extra enthusiasm for the warm weather.

Nevertheless, fluctuating weather and temperatures, awakening wildlife and unpredictable road conditions are just a few of the ways that springtime can challenge the safety and confidence of Canadian motorists.

Thankfully, the majority of springtime driving hazards can be avoided by ensuring maximum performance of the family ride in three key areas.

1. Traction

Traction is grip. It's the force that keeps your ride on the road, allows your steering and braking systems to do their jobs, and ensures your vehicle can properly tackle any emergency manoeuvres required on the open road to keep you and yours safe.

That's especially important when springtime temperature fluctuations may compromise grip, and when wandering springtime wildlife may present an increased likelihood that you'll need confident traction.

So, think tires. Once temperatures consistently exceed seven degrees Celsius, it's time to put your all-season rubber back on, since winter tires don't perform as well when it's warm out. Proper tire inflation is also key to traction.

2. Visibility

With the possibility of fog, heavy rain, snow, haze and quickly changing weather conditions day or night, visibility becomes front and centre for springtime driving safety.

Ensure your ride provides maximum visibility by checking for burnt-out headlights, and by replacing rubber-wrapped winter wipers with slimmer summer wipers that won't lift away from the windshield at higher speeds.

3. Braking

If your brakes have been pulsating or squealing, or if your brake pedal feels softer and mushier than usual, your brake system likely needs some attention. A mechanic can quickly inspect your vehicle's braking system for early detection of wear and problems before they become serious.

Note that many newer models have advanced features like Electronic Stability Control and Trailer Sway Control that rely on proper brake system performance for maximum effectiveness.

With spring comes a new set of dangers to be aware of as a driver. VOLVO CARS

Oh, how do you solve a problem like measuring fuel consumption in 2014?

Bye-bye, miles per gallon. Gas-based measures are losing relevance in a world of alternative fuels, and may not be accurate

PILOT
Mike Goetz
drive@metronews.ca

Miles per gallon (MPG), and its eccentric metric cousin, "litres per 100 km," were designed primarily to measure gasoline consumption.

But now that we're using other sources of energy, like diesel, ethanol blends, natural gas, and electricity, these gasoline-derived terms have lost some of their relevancy, and will continue to do so.

They will continue to hang around, however, because like this crazy, creeping vine we have in the backyard, they have a substantial root structure. As such, they have become the reference point.

The ethanol in our gasoline confuses things on the mileage front. ISTOCK

Take for example, what the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) came up with, to help customers understand electric car "fuel efficiency" — something called miles per gallon equivalent, or MPGe for short.

The EPA's formula for establishing this says 33.7 kilowatt-hours of electricity are equivalent to one (US) gallon of gasoline. The formula can be transferred to metric, to get Le/100 km. The Canadian Nissan Leaf, for example, is rated at 1.9/2.3 Le/100 km (city/highway).

Does that work for you? It doesn't work for me.

It certainly feels like it's stretching the descriptive powers of MPG and L/100 km.

It's like putting a small T-shirt on a standard schnauzer: It does the job, yes, but it's tight and the schnauzer is not happy.

MPG and L/100 km are even having a hard time with the gasoline thing. Many consumers these days complain that their real-world fuel efficiencies rarely match those advertised by the automakers.

Natural Resources Canada is addressing some of this. The ministry demands that manufacturers adhere to new and expanded fuel-testing protocols starting with 2015 model-year vehicles. Unlike previously, the vehicles will also go through cold cycles, air-conditioning cycles, high-speed cycles, and quick acceleration cycles.

But confusing things on the mileage front is all the ethanol the petroleum companies are putting in our gasoline. Each province determines if it wants renewable content in its transportation fuel and at what percentage, but the fuel companies are federally regulated to have at least five per cent average national ethanol content in their fuels.

They're apt to put more in, because ethanol is cheaper than gasoline.

Ethanol may be cleaner, but it has less energy per volume, so fuel economy suffers. The signs at the pumps in Ontario usually say something like, "May contain up to 10 per cent ethanol." Translation: Consumers have no way of knowing how much ethanol is in their tanks. (FYI, diesel contains more energy per volume than gasoline.)

Maybe one day we'll have an energy detector on our "transportation device" to determine exactly how much energy we have on board, regardless of its type, form, or volume, and that energy could be expressed in a new universal energy measurement which would make sense to everyone on the planet, regardless of faculty in science matters.

Until then, I guess we need to embrace the mystery, and continue to realize that our driving habits and lifestyles are still some of the biggest determinants of transportation fuel use.

On that note, I am very proud of how much fuel I saved of late by adopting a more conservative acceleration approach — I think it translates to about 18 furlongs to the quart, give or take.

Move over, Jon Hamm. These cars are television stars

Driving Don Draper.

The most handsome man on television has shared the screen with some real lookers — and we're not talking about the girls

drive@metronews.ca

When we first hitched a ride on the seductive, Emmy-guzzling turbo charger that is Mad Men, Don Draper was shuttling his kids around in a 1959 Oldsmobile Dynamic 88. Right then and there we knew we were in store for a tour d'elegance. Mad Men's detail-obsessed creators take fastidious pains to nail every aspect of the time period; from fashion minutia and decor choices to the agency's whip-smart product messaging. And the cars are no exception. Not just shiny props, they often serve more as dramatic vehicles to keep the plot moving on eight cylinders.

Leading man Don Draper (played by Jon Hamm) and the rest of the Mad Men cast have driven some of the '60s most memorable cars. CONTRIBUTED

1969 Austin-Healey Convertible Episode: Time Zones

Basked in sunlight and California vibes, Megan's green Austin-Healey greets Don at LAX in the most memorable scene of the season seven premiere. The snazzy convertible's low-slung profile accentuates her legs, on full display in a high-hemmed pale blue shift dress. After sharing a welcome smooch, the ad man props opens the passenger door for Megan, signalling that he can drive. She rebuffs his chivalry with a brusque excuse about not wanting to move the seat and takes the wheel.

Spencer Davis Group's soulful I'm a Man is the scene's musical accompaniment and drives home the point that Don's days in the driver seat of life may now be in the rear view.

1962 Cadillac Coupe de Ville Episode: The Gold Violin

"People buy things to realize their aspirations," Bertram Cooper observes after purchasing a Mark Rothko painting. In the same episode, Don himself buys into that foundational sentiment that makes the advertising world hum.

In a Cadillac showroom, Don initially shies away when he's told that the car he's eyeing is for people who have "arrived." The line triggers Don's insecurities and he has a flashback to his days as a used car salesman.

Later, to celebrate an invite to sit on the board of the Museum of Early American Folk Art, a validation of his rising stature as a hotshot creative director, Don takes the plunge without even bothering to test drive it.

1968 Chevy Vega Prototype Episode: For Immediate Release

In one of the series' most petrolhead-friendly plots, Don and company scramble to land a Chevy account for a car code named XP-887.

"It's totally new ... They know there's been nothing before Mustang and nothing after it, but they're hoping it's this," says Don, encapsulating Chevy's aspirations for the prototype of the Chevy Vega.

The real world Vega would go on to win Motor Trend's Car of the Year in 1971 but its rust-prone exterior and susceptibility to engine fires led it to recall-city. By the time production was halted six years later it had earned a reputation as one of Detroit's lousiest lemons, often ranking below the lowly Ford Pinto on worst cars of all time lists.

her divorce papers, Don has her tag along on a trip to the Manhattan Jaguar showroom.

While they're crushing on the sensuous curves of high-dollar sedans and sports cars, we spy a pair of MKs, an MK 2, a 420G, and the candy red E-Type that makes Joan's heart flutter. Don forks over a $6,000 check for the privilege of taking the irresistible speedstress out for a spin without the salesman coming along and ruining the joy ride. Wickedly fast for its day, the hot to trot XKE could race at 150 mph (241 km/h).

1969 Camaro Z28 Episode: In Care Of

When Pete Campbell messes with Bob Benson, trying to exclude him from a meeting with Chevy, the ploy goes awry. Ticked off, Bob completely upstages Pete in front of the execs and it turns out he has an encyclopedic knowledge of the innards of a Camaro and could probably host an automotive radio show.

Peer-pressured to take the car for a spin inside GM's headquarters, Pete's greenness around a manual transmission proves his undoing. He accidentally shifts into reverse and smashes into a display stand. "You can't drive a stick?" an incredulous Chevy exec exclaims.

Tesla negotiates a win in New York State

While auto dealer associations elsewhere seek to block Tesla electric-car dealerships from doing business in their jurisdictions, Tesla and New York auto dealer lobby groups have struck an agreement that will allow the startup to keep its five company-owned stores in the state and to add others, reports Bloomberg News. It reaffirms New York's commitment to the dealer franchise system, said Governor Andrew Cuomo, while making sure New York encourages innovative businesses and zero-emission vehicle sales. Tesla is battling dealers state by state for the right to sell its cars directly to consumers.

Tesla wants the right to sell its cars directly to buyers without a dealer network. This has created an uproar in some U.S. states. ALL TEXT AND PHOTOS WHEELBASE MEDIA

The agreement came three days after Tesla reached a pact in Ohio for up to three stores in that state.

Smart Home gives more, takes less

Honda has designed a home that generates its own power — enough to provide for itself and a car, with some left over to feed back into the grid, reports new-technology website Gizmag. The Honda Smart Home US is driven by the company's home energy management system (HEMS). The proprietary system, which is the brains of the operation, is housed in the garage to monitor and optimize electrical consumption across the home's micro grid. Alongside the HEMS is a battery that uses the same lithium-ion cells found in Honda's Fit EV subcompact wagon. The battery stores the energy collected by the roof-mounted solar cell system. The solar cells also recharge the resident Fit EV for typical daily commutes.

Solar panels charge batteries that power the home and the electric Honda Fit.

Shift points

- New American Automobile Association tests could give electric-vehicle consumers an idea of what to expect during the hottest and coldest months. They confirm that EV batteries it tested delivered less power in both conditions, about a quarter less range at 95 F (35 C) and less than half at 20 F (-7 C).
- Germany's second largest city has set the wheels in motion to make cars an optional mode of transport within 15-20 years. The plan is to build a network of closed walking and bicycling paths isolated from motor traffic, to better link Hamburg's many green spaces.
- Mercedes-Benz could have a next-generation hydrogen fuel-cell vehicle in limited production as soon as 2017.

Sea fuels navy's model research plane

Scientists from the United States Naval Research Laboratory (NRL) have successfully flown a radio-controlled model airplane purely on fuel derived from seawater. The fuel was obtained using NRL's gas-to-liquid technology, explains new-technology website Gizmag. This involved running seawater through an "electrolytic cation exchange module" which removed 92 per cent of its carbon dioxide while simultaneously producing hydrogen. Using a metal catalyst in a separate reactor system, the carbon dioxide and hydrogen gases were then converted into a liquid hydrocarbon fuel. Researchers are now working on a commercial-scale system that, if successful, could have profound implications for automobiles. So far, no one's taking wagers on how long it will take to drain the oceans, if commercial development proves viable.

Since we need water to live, does it really make sense to use it as fuel? Let the debate begin.

GM unveils modular engine line

General Motors has introduced its new modular family of smaller Ecotec engines. The new, three- and four-cylinder powerplants will replace three of GM's current engine families, eventually making their way into five of the company's brands. The Ecotec family will eventually spawn 11 engines in total, ranging in displacement from 1.0 to 1.5 litres. AutoWeek magazine reports that some of the engines will be port-injected, others will use direct fuel injection (as in directly into the combustion chamber).

GM's new 1.0-litre turbocharged three-cylinder is a direct matchup to Ford's similar 1.0.

Phantom Drophead Coupé Waterspeed Collection. Special series pays homage to Sir Malcolm Campbell's record-breaking exploits

The Phantom Drophead usually comes with a teak decking cover that raises to receive the roof when the top is down, but this has been replaced, for the first time, by brushed steel.

However, each panel of this steel is hand beaten into shape, a task that takes 70 hours, then the brushed finish is also achieved by hand, adding a further 10 hours on to the process.

Inside, the doors feature hand engraving and there is prodigious use of Abachi wood. Chosen for its special qualities — it's cool to the touch and has a satin-like finish — it is the first time the material has ever featured in a factory-built Rolls-Royce.

As a finishing touch, there's a hand-embroidered panel on the glovebox which lists all of the records Campbell achieved at Lake Maggiore and Coniston Water.

"This very special motor car serves to pay a perfect homage to my grandfather's remarkable acts of British daring and endeavour," said Donald Wales, grandson of Sir Malcolm Campbell. "The extraordinary attention to detail and commitment to engineering excellence so evident in these motor cars perfectly echoes the lengths my grandfather and his colleagues went to in their pursuit of the waterspeed records."

The car was revealed in Chelsea, London, on Tuesday in front of an exclusive audience of invited guests and will make its first public appearance at the Concorso d'Eleganza at the Villa D'Este classic car show in Italy on May 23. AFP

Inspired by the world waterspeed record-breaking exploits of Sir Malcolm Campbell, the new collection of convertibles showcase the levels of craftsmanship and attention to detail that set Rolls-Royce apart from all other companies in the luxury car market.

The Rolls-Royce Phantom Drophead Coupé Waterspeed Collection is a special bespoke series that will only ever run to 35 examples, each of which will be finished in a special Maggiore Blue.

It's a colour developed to pay homage to the Bluebird K3, Campbell's famous Rolls-Royce powered watercraft that on September 2, 1937 hit a top speed of 129.5 mph (208.41 km/h) across Lake Maggiore on the Italian-Swiss border. The run set a new world waterspeed record.

And with the Waterspeed Collection, Rolls-Royce looks like it's trying to set records, too. The Maggiore Blue paint is applied in nine layers and then is sanded back by hand to ensure a perfect surface to receive the finishing lacquered coat.

But it doesn't stop there, as the company's master coachline painter (what U.S. customers would call a pin-striper) then spends four hours adding coachlines and Bluebird motifs.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

Today's full moon warns that, where money is concerned, nothing is what it seems. For that reason, it would be wise to think twice before signing up to anything you don't have complete personal control over.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You will have to face someone who opposes you. If you value your independence, tackle them head on and leave them in no doubt that you will fight for your right to do your thing.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

It might be wise to slow down, especially if you have been pushing your mind and your body to extremes. Cosmic activity in the wellbeing area of your chart warns if you push harder, you could face collapse.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You want to build something of lasting value but it is beginning to dawn on you that you won't be able to do it on your own. So, work with people who share your dream.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

The Sun in the career area of your chart is on your side but other forces are at work trying to deny you the chance to move up in the world. Don't give in to negative people or negative thoughts.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Don't let anyone convince you that your ideas are of no value. Today's full moon will muddy waters and make you wonder what fact and fiction but you can trust your inner voice.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

If you let your emotions influence what should be a purely logical decision today, you could end up out of pocket. Where money is concerned you must not take risks, not even if the potential rewards are great.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Today's full moon in your sign will give you the energy you need to go your own way and, most importantly, stand up for your right to be different. If it means you fall out with certain people, well, that's too bad.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

You are who you are for a reason, so don't let anyone get away with telling you that you should think or act in ways that don't feel right to you.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You will be forthright in your views today and not everyone will like it. Too bad. Most of the time you keep your opinions to yourself but now and again you go right the other way and shout them from the rooftops.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

It will be easy to get annoyed with certain people today but if you are wise you will call upon your reserves of self-control. If you do fall out with someone, forgive and forget quickly.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Some things in life are important and some things are not. Do you know how to tell the difference? Today's full moon will encourage people to get agitated about issues that are not worth the effort. Don't be one of them. SALLY BROMPTON
